TODAY'S ODDITY

SAN FRANCISCO, June 30.—UP—Although she was a school teacher during the Civil war, and 50 years ago trekked over the Rockies to California, Mrs. Emma Ford Edwards, 83, of Covina, found a new experience today. She sailed on the N. Y. K. liner "Chichibu Maru" on a world cruise. "It's high time to be seeing something of the world," the dauntless octegenarian told reporters.

COUNCIL VOTES FOR ELECTROLIERS

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

The problem of calling little Mary and little John in time for dinner has been neatly solved by a woman of the neighborhood.

* * * *

* * * *

But she has solved the problem with the aid of her husband's army whistle.

* * * *

Now when she wants Johnnie she stands on the front porch and blows two blasts of the whistle.

* * * *

When she wants Mary, she blows one long blast.

* * * *

Darned clever people, these Chinese.

* * * *

Her idea is all right as far as it goes, but we'll bet a dime that every time she blows that whistle early in the morning, some war veteran in the neighborhood wakes up and yells "Be coming right along now sergeant; almost got my puttees laced."

* * * *

There were two of them walking in front of the Hall of Records in Oakland yesterday.

* * * *

* * * *

But both of them were smiling and joking.

* * * *

Two other men came by. Both wore trousers that had seen better days; both coats were not mates to the trousers and both men wore derbies.

* * * *

Grey had tinged the two beards that once were brown. Each carried a battered violin case.

* * * *

Both men had blue eyes—dreamy eyes.

* * * *

And as they walked along the shorter of the two was launching a tirade against mechanical orchestras.

* * * *

* * * *

It's amusing how the older folks worry about the well-being of the younger generation.

* * * *

And all the time the young folks are going along —working out their own salvation.

BODY AGAIN REVERSES DECISION

For the third time the city council last night acted on the petition to install electroliers on Tenth street. By a reversal of vote plans and specifications for the system for lights between Ripley and Cutting boulevard were ordered.

The territory between Bucas and Ripley, was eliminated from the original petition.

Last week the council turned down the petition, as asked for, the sponsor stating the people had signed it asking lights for the entire district and if any portion was cut out, they did not want them.

To Adopt Plan

Next Monday night the plans and specifications will be adopted and three weeks later, property owners will have an opportunity to file their written protests. Oral protests are not legal.

The matter of the electroliers was brought up by Councilman V. A. Fenner, who stated the question might as well be settled at that time as any other.

On the roll call on his motion that the electrolier district take in Tenth street from Ripley to Cutting, the vote was as follows:

Ayes—Hinkley, Fenner, Chandler, Meyer, Paulsen.

Noes—Scott, Imbach, Johnson, Wright.

Scott Opposed

Scott opposed the motion because the sponsors said the people wanted lights the entire way or not at all.

Imbach stated he did not believe the time was ripe for putting in the lights, that a large number of property owners were opposed to the work, and it was his opinion that a majority of the people when the matter came up for final hearing would appear and protest the work.

Johnson said when the petition first came up he favored the lights, but there had been so many protests, and as the present motion cut out part of the district he was opposed to it. The motion did not grant what was originally asked for.

TWO HELD ON SLAYING COUNT

REDWOOD CITY, June 30. — UP—A warrant charging William Woodring, 35, ranch hand, with the murder of Frank Roderick, a wealthy La Honda rancher, whose body was found buried in an abandoned well last Friday night, was sworn out here late today by Undersheriff E. Farrell of San Mateo county.

The warrant followed a lengthy statement by Mrs. Minnie Roderick, 32, widow of the victim, who collapsed twice this afternoon.

District Attorney Franklin Swart declared the woman's declarations had completely cleared herself, and she would be released from the county jail soon.

At the same time Woodring was accused by Farrell, a warrant charging complicity was filed by the undersheriff against Ernest Hillebrandt, a neighboring rancher of the Rodericks.

Woodring and Hilebrandt denied the charges. Woodring said they were "foolish."

Mrs. Roderick said she did not see her husband killed, but heard the shot.

Swart and Farrell claimed Mrs. Roderick's story implicated both men, that she had heard the shot from a .22 calibre rifle that killed her husband and that she charged Hillebrandt with helping in the hiding of the body under a pile of fres dirt that was shoveled into the old well.

They claimed she was dominated over by Woodring and forced to file her suit for divorce from Roderick a month after his disappearance on May 15. The two officials declared further that her story of Roderick running away with $2800 and a "red haired woman" was inspired by the ranch hand.

"She gave a clean story and has cleared herself of being involved in the slaying," Swart said. "She will be released within a couple of days."

ODD FELLOWS BEAT LION TEAM

Prospects of an extra inning game were looming upon the horizon of the high school diamond yesterday afternoon when the Odd Fellows-Lions contest entered upon the last half of the seventh inning with the score tied 3 to 3.

But the Odd Fellows didn't want an extra inning, and put their idea across in no uncertain terms. George Lehmkuhl fanned. Bill Gualdoni walked, and stole both second and third.

Walt Gordon then picked up the hickory. He popped out to Crocker in left field, but by the time the fielder threw the ball back into the infield, Gualdoni was home and the Odd Fellows had defeated the Lions 4 to 3.

By winning last night's contest, the linkers went back into a one game lead over the Firemen. However, the fire fighters will have their chance to tie the league once more tonight when they clash with the Native Sons on the high school diamond at 5:15 o'clock.

In yesterdays' battle, the wind played havoc with many perfect flies and in other cases lifted the agate way, way out over the heads of the fielders. Johnny Babich was the only hitter to connect for a homer.

Doubles were the order of the day. Guido Prolo gained two hits of that caliber, while Babe Pinelli and Jack Pinto both reached second on long hits.

Orr twirled the entire game for the Odd Fellows, and allowed five hits, three walks, and struck out 11 Lions. Lemon, pitching for the Lions, also allowed five hits. He fanned seven linkers, and was nicked for five walks.

HOW TO FOIL A FOUL! By Burris Jenkins Jr.

DO NOT DISTURB
"A FOULED FIGHTER SHOULD BE ALLOWED TO REST UNTIL HE IS READY TO CONTINUE"... IS ONE OF THE PLANS FOR STOPPING FOULS.
ANOTHER SCHEME IS TO PROVIDE GLADIATORS WITH PNEUMATIC TRUNKS!
ANOTHER IDEA IS TO ELIMINATE ALL JUDGES, REFEREES, ETC., AND LET EVERYTHING GO OOOOOOOOOOOW!
A COUPLE OF ARRESTS FOR FELONIOUS ASSAULT WOULD MAKE THE BOYS A BIT MORE CAREFUL..
HOLDING UP BOTH PURSES IN CASE OF FOUL WOULD CERTAINLY SHORTEN THE EXTENDED AGONY SCENES... THEY WOULDN'T STAGE 'EM FOR NOTHING
THE "RAIN-CHECK" IDEA WOULD ENABLE FANS TO KEEP COMING TO A PHIL SCOTT FIGHT FOR A LIFE-TIME!

Woodmen Nine Meets Oakland

The Richmond Woodmen are scheduled to tangle with the Oakland Woodmen next Sunday morning at 10 o'clock on the First street diamond.

Richmond and Berkeley are at present tied for first place in east-bay Woodmen's baseball competition. The local athletes have shown plenty of style in their two recent victories, and it is expected that they will not have a great deal of difficulty in repulsing the Oaklanders next Sunday morning at First street.

Bono and Crocker will be the batteries for the local Woodmen next week-end.

Hang it all! The project for digging a tunnel under the English Channel has been killed again, and those poor girls will still have to swim.

JUNIOR LEGION NINE DEFEATS CROCKETT

The fast Richmond American Legion Junior league nine captured its second game in a two out of three series with Crockett by a score of 5 to 4.

Ten hard innings were required to give Richmond its second victory over the sugar town boys. Richmond began the scoring in the first inning when Moitoza scored on a single by Leslie Scarcella.

Crockett retaliated in the second period with another counter, while Richmond again jumped into the front row in the third when Moitoza again crossed home plate on another hit by Scarcella. Crockett stepped into the lead in the fifth when it earned two runs, and added one more score to its increasing total. A run by the locals in the seventh and another in the ninth tied the score.

The tenth inning lost the ball game for the Crockett outfit. Scarcella was hit by a pitched ball and scored on an error.

Richmond's next battle toward the county American Legion baseball title will be fought against the Bay Point team at Walnut Creek July 4 at 10:30 o'clock. Bay Point is the titlist of the central section of the county.

Passoni twirled nice ball for the Richmond nine, allowing but four hits and fanning 11 Crockett athletes, Crocker and Novascone received for Richmond. Rodriguez occupied the mound for the Crockett squad, and allowed 11 hits and succeeded in striking out five local sluggers.

Box score:

	R.	H.	E.
Richmond	5	11	4
Crockett	4	4	5

Batteries: Passone, Crocker and Novascone; Rodriquez and Owens.

Woodmen Nine Beats Hayward Team On Sunday

The Richmond Woodmen added one more win to their rapidly increasing list of victories Sunday when they handed the Hayward Woodmen an 11 to 5 defeat.

Bono pitched nice ball for the local players, allowing but five hits. Brown, on the mound for the Hayward team, was nicked for six bingles. Crocker did the receiving for the Richmond squad.

George Jester was the hitting phenomenon on the Richmond nine. He earned every one of the six hits gained by Richmond out of six times at bat.

Line score:

	R	H	E
Richmond	11	6	1
Hayward	5	5	2

Batteries: Bono and Crocker; Brown and Scott.

FIREMEN NINE BEATEN HERE

The Richmond fire fighters went down to a 9 to 4 defeat before the hard hitting Redwood City Firemen Sunday morning at First street in the annual firemen's baseball battle.

Both aggregations played clever baseball, but the Redwood City boys seemed to know how to make their hits count a little better than did the local athletes.

The members of the Richmond lineup were: Grady, 1b; Morrison, 2b; Kamb and Hathaway, 3b and p; J. Huzefka, ss; Martin, lf; Addison, rf; Paasch, cf and Millecivich, rf.

The Redwood City squad was presented a loving cup donated by Chief Cooper of Richmond and Chief Ryan of Redwood City at a banquet for both teams and their wives, following the game. A chicken dinner was served, with music furnished by the orchestra of the Oakland fire department.

Plans are being made for a return game in September, when the cup will again be presented to the winner.

OAKS TO MEET HOLLYWOOD 9

SAN FRANCISCO, June 30.—UP—The Los Angeles Angels, with a lead of three games over Sacramento and Oakland, were outstanding favorites tonight to be at the top when the first half of the Pacific Coast league's season ends two weeks from now.

In those two weeks the Angels will have opposition from the two weakest teams of the circuit, meeting Portland this week and Seattle thereafter.

The Oaks will oppose Hollywood a team that took seven straight games from Sacramento last week, in a series starting Tuesday. The Senators will meet the San Francisco Missions and the San Francisco Seals will play at Seattle.

Fugitive Pair Break Legs

ARDMORE, Okla.—Deputy Sheriffs Dwight Bell and Monroe Gunter were pursuing an automobile they suspected was being used for transporting liquor. When the machine failed to stop they fired at the tires.

The car's occupants, later identified by officers as M. T. Meeks and M. J. Watson, started running across a plowed field, with Bell and Gunter in pursuit.

Suddenly Meeks fell to the ground groaning, "I've broken my leg."

His companion advanced only three steps further when he, too, fell.

"So have I" he shouted.

Hospital records verify the story.

BOXERS READY FOR BIG BOUT JULY 4

SAN FRANCISCO, June 30.—Ray Alvis, manager of "Young" Jack Thompson, negro, welterweight champion of the world, lost his dignity for a few moments here the other day.

Ray, who is a southern gentleman and still possesses the soft drawl employed by his forbears, emitted an outburst that could be heard from one end of the city to the other. And all because his man, Thompson, has been installed on the short end of the betting odds in his fight with "Young" Corbett, foremost contender for the 147-pound title, at Ewing Field here on July fourth.

"Who makes these odds?" queried Alvis upon learning his man was on the short end. "I can't understand how anybody can put a champion on the short end. It's ridiculous to me.

"I'm going to scout around and take the odds. I think Jack will kayo Corbett, and maybe, if I can get decent odds, I'll back my judgment on it."

Let it be known here and now that Alvis has the utmost faith in Thompson's ability. All managers think their fighters are good, but few are willing to back their talk with coin of the realm.

The boxers are now winding up their final week of training. Both report themselves in excellent shape. Thompson has reached the point in his training that he was advised to take a day off recently.

Corbett's South City quarters were jammed with friends and fans Sunday afternoon. He showed an abundance of skill and speed against his crew of mates.

GOVERNORS AT SALT LAKE MEETING

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah., June 30.—UP—The nations' governors today tackled the problems of unemployment, insurance and federal landlordship at their twenty-second annual conference here.

Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, New York, told the delegates this country always will have to face a serious unemployment situation unless a method of insurance is devised to protect the worker. This problem, he said, was caused by the growth of industrialism.

He explained that although five-day weeks, shorter hours per day, and public building programs in emergencies will tend to relieve the situation temporarily, a systematic form of insurance must be evolved as a permanent solution.

Insurance Asked

The governor advanced unemployment insurance, including old age security, such as that passed in New York this year, as a logical solution to the situation which he characterized as becoming more serious annually.

Calling attention to the various systems undertaken by foreign countries to insure their workers when unemployment comes, Gov. Roosevelt said there was no reason why the United States should fear to test the plan.

"Unemployment insurance shall come to this country," he declared, "just as certainly as we have come to workmen's compensation for industrial injury, just as certainly as we are today in the midst of a national wave of insuring against old age want."

Not A Dole

The insurance, he warned, should not become a mere dole which encourages idleness and defeats its own purpose, but must be placed upon an acturial basis with contributions made by the workers themselves.

Governor Frank C. Emerson, Wyoming, appealed to the east, south and north to understand and cooperate with the west, on the question of public domain and its proposed return to the states.

The proper development of the west, with its unbounded natural resources, Gov. Emerson indicated, will be hindered by restrictions imposed by federal reservation of public land unless all sections of the country realize its complex situations.

Lauds U. S.

He said federal landlordship including national parks, Indian reservations, forest reserves, and unappropriated lands prevails over more than one half the area of the eleven states.

The return to the states of surface title to the free public lands would result in immeasureable benefit to the west, he said. He advocated, however, that the government should continue its control of national forests, Indian reservations and parks. These latter, Governor Emerson said, have been handled fairly.

No Action

The conference will not take any definite action on the subjects discussed. Its purpose, it was pointed out, is to permit the exchange of ideas and opinions, with the express intention of enabling the various states to understand better the problems of their neighbors.

The meeting will adjourn Wednesday afternoon. The remainder of the week will be spent on trips to the mountain parks of southern Utah.

FRENCH TROOPS QUIT RHINE ZONE

MAYENCE, Germany, June 30.—UP—The French evacuation of the Rhineland was completed today, and tonight not a French soldier remained on duty in the occupied area which for 11 years was held by the allies.

Gen. Adolph Guillaumat, French commander-in-chief, and his staff officers left at 12:30 p. m. The Rhineland commission departed from Weisbaden, preparatory to the formal termination of the occupation, at midnight.

The final evacuation which France promised in the Young plan would be completed by tonight, was regarded as a good omen for peace in Europe. The Germans celebrated joyously as the French left.

EVACUATION IS CHEERED BY GERMANS

BERLIN, June 30.—UP—At the close of the Reichstag session today, the members rose and cheered the evacuation of the Rhineland by the French.

Addresses were made recalling the history of the period of occupation during the past 11 years and the invasion of the Ruhr. Their tenor was that Germany is ready to befriend her former enemies, but insists that all nations have equal privileges.

L. A. Man To Be Head Of Dope Squad

SACRAMENTO, June 30.—UP—Appointment of Captain H. S. Seager of the Los Angeles police department as chief of the division of narcotics, succeeding Senator Frank Benson of San Jose whose health made his resignation necessary, was announced here tonight by Governor C. C. Young.

Capt. Seager entered the Los Angeles police department in 1922 as a patrolman and since then has had an exceptional record.

"The new chief has been regarded by the Los Angeles mayor and police authorities as one of their most valuable officers," Governor Young said. "Only through the desire of these officials to cooperate in a comprehensive attack on the narcotic problem has the state been able to obtain the services of Capt. Seager."

FRENCH TENNIS STAR BEATEN BY AMERICAN

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 30.—UP-Wimbledon witnessed the most surprising upset in its tennis history today when young Wilmer Allison of Austin, Tex., defeated the great Henry Cochet of France, in a quarter final match of the British tennis championships.

Cochet, defending champion, and favorite to retain the title, was impotent before the Texan's sizzling services, cool return and vivid change of pace.

The scores were 6-4, 6-4 and 6-3.

"Was Lucky"

News of the Allison-Cochet results spread quickly to every corner of the stadium. Contestants in other courts quit play. Spectators rushed from galleries into the corridors under the center court amphitheater, all asking each other if Allison really had won.

"I was very lucky," Allison said. "Anybody who beats Cochet is lucky."

Jean Borotra said that he would "not be surprised to see America walk away with the Davis cup after this victory by Allison."

Service Aided

Allison based his success on his service. Many of his meteor-like serves went into the corners of Cochet's court and were scored as aces or were netted by Cochet.

Cochett netted out in many of his return shots. Frequently the Frenchman was left standing at baseline after neat chops over the net.

Cochet appeared to be trying to find his game and appeared to be waiting for an opportune moment. It never came. Allison did not wilt.

Allison is one of three Americans in the semi-finals.

United States Of Europe Held Only Peace Hope

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 28.—UP—A "United States of Europe" eliminating all tariff and trade barriers is the only hope for European peace, according to Dr. Richard Moldanke, of Plainfield, N. J., world famous business expert.

Dr. Moldanke, a friend of Hugo Stinnes, Europe's greatest industrialist, spoke here before the annual convention of the American Foundrymen's association His many trips to Europe as a consulting metallurgist for continental concerns have made him an international figure.

"Tear down tariff barriers and you tear down the bulwarks of international suspicion and distrust," he said.

Regarding the American tariff, which is causing so much comment in European cities, Dr. Moldanke said:

"The rates should be fixed by an unbiased committee of non-political experts, they should then study the matter and fix rates adaptable to changing conditions. If there is a shortage of a commodity in America, tariff walls should be lowered. If production here increases, the walls should be raised. Only in this way can international amity be safe."

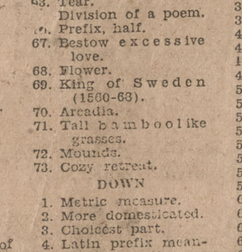
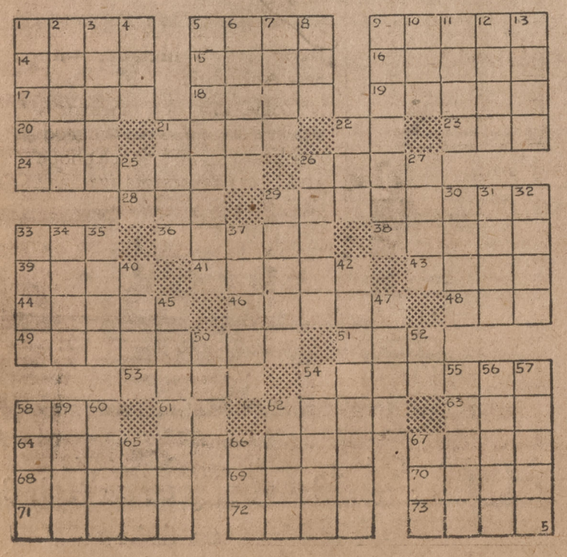
YESTERDAY'S ANSWER





ALL'S QUIET AT FOX THEATER WINS PRAISE

He was only a boy and the war killed his youth. Love, honor and respect were bitter ashes in his mouth. Patriotism was a hollow mockery. Then they killed his body, but his soul they could not kill. It lives on, gallant and courageous, in a dramatic sage of the Unknown Soldier, "All Quiet On the Western Front."

The Universal production inspired by a book that won the admiration of the thinking world, will close tomorrow at the Fox California theater. It is intelligent and mature entertainment, powerful in scope, unconventional in treatment, destined to stand as the greatest of war dramas.

You will cheer the human candor, forgive the fine vulgarity, live through the wretchedness of the trenches and laugh at the rough, good comradeship in this picture, which has set new motion picture standards.

"All Quiet On The Western Front" has provoked the unanimous praise of critics. Of it, one reviewer said "on the scroll of great achievements of the screen, let the name of this production be deeply and darkly engraved. For, until you have seen it, you have never viewed the war portrayed on the motion picture film.

"This is a Press-the-Button Age" says a writer. The trouble is that our laundries are apt to press them rather too vigorously.

MARY PHILBIN IN FILM AT RICHMOND

Mary Philbin, who is known as the daintiest star in motion pictures, has scored a triumph in her first talking picture, "After the Fog" which opens at the Richmond theater today.

Miss Philbin who won her way to fame through her consummate performance in 'Merry Go Round' has found a niche in the new scientific medium of talking pictures. Her diction and enunciation were found to be most adaptable for the mocriphone and the technicians announced that Miss Philbin's voice registered perfectly.

"After the Fog" offers Miss Philbin a splendid opportunity to display her ability. She runs the gamut of human emotions in her role as Faith, that daughter of an irate father, who believes it a child's duty to uphold family tradition. He endeavors to choose a husband for her but when she must finally decide between real love and duty, she acquiesces to the stronger instinct — love.

When you see Mary Philbin in "After the Fog," you will see her for the first time as a free lance star. She was under contract with Universal for a number of years and was considered one of the strongest box office stars on that lot.

Critics many times expressed their opinion that Mary Philbin is the Bernhardt of motion pictures, and Mary Philbin admits that Sarah Bernhardt has always been her inspiration as an actress.

If the London conference had come a little later along in the season the British would undoubtedly have insisted on a clause limiting Bobby Jones.

Standard Oil Quits Tax Suit

It was announced yesterday that the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company and the Standard Oil company have withdrawn their suits against the East Bay Municipal Utility district for a return of tax moneys.

According to the report, the two corporations withdrew their suits when investigation revealed they had no legal ground for such suits.

CITY OF CHICAGO SPEEDS ON TO NEW RECORD

CHICAGO, June 30.—UP— The Hunter family's plane roared thru storm clouds tonight in search of an endurance flight record to last for all time.

The vivid orange and blue monoplane completed its 19th day in the air, 356 hours, before dusk when the black clouds gathered to give sleepy-eyed John and Kenneth Hunter a tussle with wind and rain in their attempt to stay up until July 4.

Their quadruple handicap of rain, low-hanging clouds, fatigue and a useless gasoline tank bothered them not at all. Instead they dropped a grimy note which read: "We'll be tossing firecrackers out of the plane on the Fourth. Everything okay."

So far behind was the previous record of 420 hours, made in St. Louis, that the whole Hunter family bent its every effort to set a new record, which, by its very length, would dissuade other aviators from attempting to break it.

Walter and Albert Hunter spent the day in the refueling plane, delivering gasoline, a storage battery and food to their younger brothers in the aged Stinson-Detroiter cabin monoplane which had flown 50,000 miles before they bought it and which has gone almost that far on the present flight.

Sister Aids

Sister Irene, a pretty blonde school teacher from their home town of Sparta, Ill., ruled the kitchen, preparing personally every bite of food that was lowered to them in a mail sack.

Mrs. Ida Hunter, their aged, white-haired mother was there, too, cheering on her boys by the means of frequent radio broadcasts. They had in their machine a receiving set tuned constantly to the wave length on which their mother's words went out.

Whether they could hear her was problematical, so deafened were they from the roar and rumble of the plane. But gallant sons they were. Every time their aged mother spoke into the microphone they dipped low over Sky Harbor airport and waved to her, whether they could make out her actual words or not.

Boys Lauded.

"Your achievement goes far to prove the complete dependability of a good airplane in the hands of good men. My comrades of the Southern Cross join me in the wish that you may go ever farther — right to the Fourth of July. Cheerio."

Chileans To Attend Trade Meet In State

SACRAMENTO, June 30.—UP—Seventeen delegates, official representatives of the Chilean republic and unofficial commercial and civic organizations, have been assured the Pan-American reciprocal trade conference in Sacramento during August.

This cabled information has been received from both conference "key man," Joaquin Cabezas, Santiago, and the San Francisco air ambassador, Arthur Caylor, who is now in Rio De Janeiro on a good will mission.

Headquarters of the unofficial congress of civic, commercial and farm leaders have daily received supplementary lists of both official and unofficial delegates, according to Simon J. Lubin, chairman of the governing board of the conference. Latin American interest has increased during the last week, due to the recent passage of the tariff measure by congress.

Theater Man Son Guilty Of Robbery Count

LOS ANGELES, June 30.—Charles Gore, son of a prominent western theater magnate, and Harry S. Adler, today were found guilty of robbing a branch of the Seaboard National bank of $2000.

The conviction was reached by Superior Judge Ruben Schmidt sitting without a jury.

Judge Schmidt found the two youths guilty on their plea of not guilty made when they were originally arraigned. Another plea of not guilty by reason of insanity is still pending.

PURCHASE POWER OF THE DOLLAR INCREASE SEEN

LOS ANGELES, June 30.—Salaries are automatically increasing each month, even though employers do not add one penny to the pay check, according to findings of the California Taxpayers association after a thorough study of the purchasing power of the dollar. The association says:

"Wages have gone up 5 to 10 percent in the last twelve months because each dollar in the pay envelope can now buy more shoes, groceries, clothes, etc. This means that the employer will not need to increase the size of pay checks this year since he has an economic friend quietly at work automatically doing just this same thing.

"All this comes about because of the change in the purchasing power of the dollar. Commodity prices are falling, which means that the cost of living is decreasing. Stating it in another way, the purchasing power of the dollar is increasing. Persons whose income is a fixed amount are enjoying in effect, a greater increase, because their dollars buy more now than at any time since 1917.

No Increase

"The automatic salary increase of employes of cities, counties and school districts is not justified this year. Under ordinary circumstances, salary increases of these governmental employes may range from nothing up to 10 per cent. On the other hand, a decrease of 10 per cent in the cost of living is anticipated, which is equivalent to a corresponding increase in salaries. Therefore if salaries for this coming year are budgeted by the cities, counties and districts at the same figure as last year they will be in effect, equivalent to at least a ten per cent advance over the past business year. Governments like employers, cannot afford to make the mistake of running contrary to the general business conditions of today. It follows, then, that the budgets of cities, counties and schools should not show an increase in salary rates.

"There is very little likelihood of wage or salary earners in private business gaining, as a class, any increases this year. Some have already accepted reductons and many are actually unemployed. The American Federation of Labor reports that 20 per cent of its membership was unemployed on April 1, this year.

"It appears that a 10 per cent change in commodity prices will cause this year's dollar to be worth 64 cents, in terms of the 1913 dollar. This is the highest figure in 12 years.

Decrease Seen.

"The 1913 value of the dollar was 58.3 cents on December 15, 1923, and it had not varied more than 2.1 cents from that figure since the latter part of 1921. In other words, from 1921 to 1929 there was little or no change in either the cost of living or in wholesale commodity prices, but during the past 12 months prices have dropped at arate of about 1 per cent a month. Any marked change, either upward or downward, in wholesale commodity prices is followed in a few months by a nearly equal change in retail prices and in the cost of living.

"The commodity index decreased 160.6 in March, 1927, to 145.7 in June 1930. This was a decrease of 9.3 per cent. The government cost of living index for June, 1929, was 170.2, and for December, 1929, it was 171.4. Similarly, the National Industrial Conference Board cost of living index was higher in the second half of the year than in the first half, but it has decreased each month since October 1929, in keeping with the decline of the wholesale commodity prices.

Many other index numbers of wholesale commodity prices tell the same story. The Annalist index decreased 13 per cent from July, 1929 to June, 1930. The Department of Labor's wholesale commodity index decreased 7.5 per cent from July, 1929 to April, 1930, and will probably reflect about 10 per cent decrease for the twelve months when the June, 1930 figure is known. Bradstreet's index dropped 8.2 per cent between February, 1929 and May, 1930, while the Fisher's index lost 12.3 per cent between March 22, 1929 and June 21, 1930.

Prices Decline

"Economists are practically unanimous in calling attention to the fact that these price declines are world wide and that in several other countries the decline has been twice as great as in the United States. For this reason, an even further decline in wholesale prices in this country may be expected, together with an equivalent rise in the purchasing power of the dollar.

"The steward of the public funds, mindful of the present disturbed economic conditions, will recognize the fact that the increasing purchasing power of the dollar is equivalent to a raise in salary to the wage earner, and will not permit any increases in salary schedules this year.

"The taxpayer, such as the farmer, whose income is directly influenced by a decrease in the price of the commodity he produces, is going to find his tax burden relatively heavier this year. Moreover, the manufacturer will find that his overhead in the way of taxes will not decline correspondingly with his cost of production. The government should not make matters worse by increasing salaries."

"The modern wife goes motoring while her husband plays golf," says a magistrate. Adam deleva and Eve spins.

Lloyd Suit On Movie Plot Delayed

LOS ANGELES, June 30.—UP—The contest over the origin of Harold Lloyd's college pciture "The Freshman" entered a "time out" period today when Federal Judge G. Cosgrove recessed the $1,000,000 suit brought against the comedian by Mrs. Sadie Witwer, widow of H. C. Witwer, humor writer.

Other cases pending in the court made the delay necessary after Lloyd testified that "The Freshman" was not plagiarized from "The Emancipation of Rodney," one of Witwer's college stories.

The comedian declared that the idea of a charm to help him whip the college bully was not Witwer's as it had been used in three other Lloyd productions.

Mrs. Witwer alleges that Lloyd rejected her late husband's proposal to buy the "Emancipation of Rodney" for a film but later picked up many of the ideas and some of the plot.

BERMAN FREED OF BRIBE CHARGES

LOS ANGELES, June 30.—UP—Charges of jury bribing against Jacob Berman, former Julian Petroleum corporation promoter, and his brother, Louis, were dismissed today by Superior Judge Emmet Wilson.

Judge Wilson then ordered the opening of the trial of Louis Krause, private detective, accused of having served as an agent between the Berman brothers and members of a jury in a Julian conspiracy trial two years ago.

The action was taken, according to Judge Wilson, because the Bermans were to be used as state witnesses against other defendants.

Shortly after the dismissal Jacob Berman appeared as a state witness at the second trial of Morris Lavine and Miss Leontine Johnson, charged with attempting to extort money from prominent men in connection with the Julian collapse.

Lavine, a former newspaperman was preparing articles for his paper in conjunction with Miss Johnson, who was private secretary to S. C. Lewis, once president of the oil concern.

When young people play hard...

Saves 4 to 6 hours each week

But plenty of hot water at the turn of the faucet washes away the trouble. Throughout the year too, it saves your time—by giving you hot water without delay, by quickly dissolving dirt and grease, by making it easy to keep things sweet and fragrant.

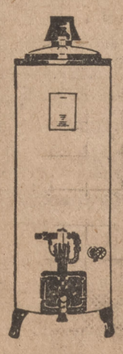
When men stop at fine hotels they like hot water at a turn of the faucet — for bathing and shaving. It's this same service that is brought to your home by the Automatic Gas Water Heater. Because of its insulated tank and efficiency, the cost is less per gallon to heat water with an Automatic Gas Water Heater than with the old-fashioned methods of waiting for water to heat.

And once you install the excellent service, there's never any bother about having an abundant supply of hot water—day and night.

Special Summer Sale

Believe it or not—the P. G. and E. will completely install an Automatic Gas Water Heater for you as follows:

$5 to $10 allowance for your old water heater (tank heater, combination boiler, or water back.)



$5 down

Balance as low as $9 a month for 12 months. Set of Cannon Bath Towels included with new Automatic.

Come into our office or a dealer's store and see the modern heaters. Or just telephone and our representative will call, inspect your present water heating equipment, and make you an offer.

THE WOMAN OF IT

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall

MARIONETTE

You take my face between your hands, and play
On its response as if on lyric strings.
A warm flush rises to the brow as gay
Speech molds your mouth; a bitter tear-drop stings
The eye with brilliance at a small reproof,
Or a soft dream enfolds it at a word;
The lips are pallid when you are aloof,
Craving the warmth and hunger they once stirred
When you are troubled, purple shadows lie
In sorry hollows graven on the cheek;
When you are lonely, tender echoes cry
Their sympathy in wrinkles, finely meek;
When you are quietly content and glad,
Luster must lend the whole some comeliness;
Fashioning for it what it never had,
Reflecting in it beauty you possess!

LAURINA JASPER.

PATTERN HUSBANDS

HAVE you a pattern husband? Or are you trying to make one?

Or are you planning to turn your June bridegroom into one? Then can't you, won't you lay down your shears—fatal as were the shears of another female, named Atropos—before it's too late?

The American woman prides herself, fairly enough, on her well-trained husband—trained in courtesy, in unselfish consideration, in helpfulness about the home and with the children, in friendly tolerance of his wife's individual interests and activities and liberty. The married man with these traits, this point of view, is surely a vast improvement on the oldtime "lord and master." But how much farther does woman's quite justifiable revolt against a domestic czar get us, if in his place is to be set up a czarina?

Like every feminist, we have registered many a protest against the husband as a boss. But, like every fair-minded feminist, we are just as strongly opposed to the bossy wife. And we have to admit that she is a type too frequently in evidence in modern American life.

Why should either husband or wife try to reform and manage the other? Why cannot marriage be an absolutely equal partnership, operating under a rule of reason instead of a rule of supreme authority? Why, as we have said before, cannot the government of the home follow the model of ancient Rome, the consulate with two consuls possessing equal and identical powers?

Yet who of us doesn't know the woman with the "pattern husband," the woman never content unless she can snip and shape the man she marries into her conception of what he should be—"remould him nearer to her heart's desire"? And he stands for it, the poor dub; he lets her trim away his friends and associations, snip off his impractical ideas, cut his ambitions to suit herself, woo and persuade and nag and bully him into the husband and father and citizen she considers most admirable. "The stronger sex," forsooth!

USUALLY, of course, the wife's motives are of the best. She thinks—indeed, she knows—that she's perfectly justified in making over her husband. But what havoc she can work with all that is best and finest in him seems to us superbly analyzed in Helen Hull's fine new novel of married life in the United States, "The Asking Price."

Oliver, the hero of this novel, is naturally a creative writer who falls in love with and marries Audrey, as charming, conscientious and crass a materialist and marital boss as has appeared in recent fiction. Her unscrupulous dominance begins even on the honeymoon and, instead of fighting out and through an issue, Oliver makes the mistake of trying to end it with a kiss. Only in an occasional fugitive moment of clarity does he grasp "the amazing discovery that although he and Audrey had drowned a situation in a flood of passion, such drowning was not death, but preservation intact."

At his wife's insistence, he has accepted a position as college instructor. Immediately she begins to pull social wires, to advise him how he must behave, whom he must conciliate, because "you'd never get anywhere, not anywhere, if I didn't look out for you."

That is bad enough. Worse comes when she tells him that she has burned the poem he wrote for her, about their love—when she has the amazing effrontery and cruelty so to interfere with his supreme self-expression, to insult his passion. Then he knows the bitterness of the man who has married a mentor.

"He had expected Audrey to satisfy that hunger of his for another self to share his solitude, a self laid limb to limb far closer than any embrace of the flesh. Instead of that he felt her sharply opposed to him, an antagonist more dangerous than the indifferent outsiders of the world because he went armed for them."

SO there goes on "Audrey's remodeling, her lopping him off at unwelcome corners." He knows what it is "to have a woman make you over to her pattern of a husband." A bequest gives him the chance to leave his loathed teaching and write—if Audrey will give up her petty ambitions and live simply. She will not.

One excuse for her, of course, is that she hasn't enough to do. A job, such as so many younger wives hold to-day might be her salvation and her husband's. Oliver and his children are much happier when Audrey is too busy, building a new house or running a Liberty Loan campaign, to pester them.

Still, she practically ruins Oliver's life—the inner life that counts—and then, at the end, she reproaches him for not keeping up his ambitions! Also, she confesses that she didn't burn his poem and would have given it back to him "if you made a terrible fuss."

Here lies the moral. If, from the beginning of his married life, a man would display a little spunk, if he would practice the noble art of self-defense, he might save himself from his wife's pattern-clipping shears and save his soul alive. Being in love with her is no excuse for yielding to her his self-respect. As Oliver warns his daughter, Olive, on the last page of "The Asking Price":

"Don't you ever cave in. For love least of all."

Oh, Go to Bed

"DAD, how can flies walk on the ceiling?"

"How does the fly make his feet quit sucking?"

"Oh, go to bed."

A DISH A DAY

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

There are many ambitious women in New York City who refuse to make a choice between a career and a home. They insist on having both. Often the ingenuity of their household arrangements might serve as a lesson to the woman who spends the greater part of her day accomplishing her household tasks in haphazard style and wondering where the whole day has gone.

KAREN HOLLIS

Mary Bonner, for instance, holds an important executive job with a Fifth Avenue shop, but it so happens that she is one of those born homemakers, so she refuses to take up a hotel, or furnished apartment and tea room sort of existence. Instead, she has a little apartment near Beekman Place and by systematizing her housework and cooing she finds in them relaxation instead of work.

Often she has to plan meals for two or three days ahead, so that the hour she allows in the morning before going to her office may be spent in preparing food some days rather than in marketing. The mechanical refrigerator is, to her mind, the great invention of the age, for with regulated cold control she can go off to work, leaving desserts to be frozen, salads to be chilled, or jellied meats to be set, knowing that they will be ready to serve when she returns home.

And if Mary Bonner could find the cook who invented the icebox cake, she would give her a special vote of thanks, for that is a dessert that is very popular with the friends whom she brings home to dinner and one that is easy for her to prepare in the morning before going to work.

Here is her recipe for pineapple icebox cake. Home-made sponge cake may be substituted for the boxed, chain store variety that they use, and fresh, instead of the evaporated, cream may be used.

PINEAPPLE ICE BOX CAKE

1 tablespoon gelatine
3 tablespoons cold water
1 cup crushed pineapple (fresh or canned)
Pinch of salt
6 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
3 cup evaporated milk
Slightly stale sponge cake

Moisten the gelatine with cold water, then dissolve over hot water and add lemon juice, pineapple, sugar and salt. Stir until the sugar dissolves, then remove from the stove to cool. Heat the evaporated milk in the top of a double boiler to the scalding point. Cool slightly, then set in a pan of ice and salt and whip briskly with a rotary egg beater until stiff.

When the gelatine mixture begins to solidify, fold it into the whipped milk. Line sides and bottom of mould with sponge cake cut into strips, cover with pineapple mixture, then alternate cake and cream until it is all used. Put in ice box for several hours, at least three or four, but all day is better. Unmould and serve with crushed strawberries or fruit sauce.

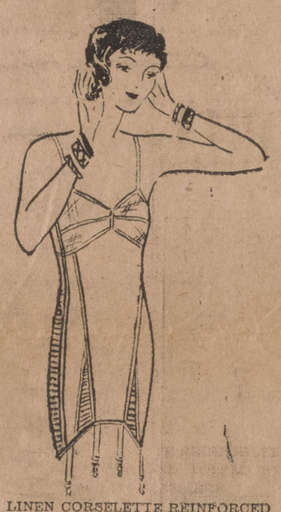
Corseting for Next to Nothing

By Ann Roberts

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930



LINEN CORSELETTE REINFORCED WITH RUBBER AND TOPPED BY A NET BRASSIERE

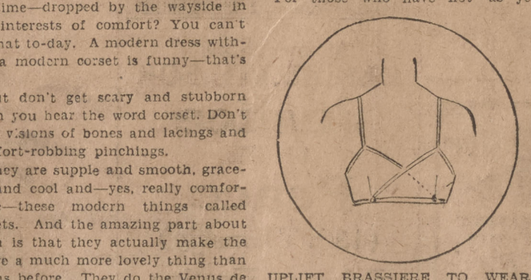
REMEMBER those care-free days when the corset, if any, was simply forgotten in the summertime—dropped by the wayside in the interests of comfort? You can't do that to-day. A modern dress without a modern corset is funny—that's all.

But don't get scary and stubborn when you hear the word corset. Don't have visions of bones and lacings and comfort-robbing pinchings.

They are supple and smooth, graceful and cool and—yes, really comfortable—these modern things called corsets. And the amazing part about them is that they actually make the figure a much more lovely thing than it was before. They do the Venus de Milo presto change quite painlessly.

Of course, any one expects that when the talk turns to corsets—and good corsets—that money and lots of it is involved. That has always been so, and, true to our training, we go on expecting that it always will be so.

Now, listen to me, that day is over. You can get the most attractive and most effectual corset garment (for they really are not corsets in the old-time sense of the word) for $5, $6 and $7 and be proud to wear it too.



UPLIFT BRASSIERE TO WEAR WITH BATHING SUIT—MADE OF FLANNEL, BOUND WITH SILK

In the first place, a corset is a part of the lingerie. A part did I say? Often it is all, for when it comes to attached petticoats and panties nothing more is needed. But the point is that, when worn next to the skin—and no proper corset is worn any other way—laundering becomes an important factor in the game. Those with traditions and fixations still hike and pull their corsets over silk shirts though rolls and wrinkles will appear. Those who know a corset's place and use to-day simply eliminate altogether that extra nuisance and heat and get down to the essential corseting as the bedrock foundation garment.

Corsets of linen are perhaps the most fascinating of them all when it comes to their laundering proclivities. Those made in all-over models with little cup brassieres of net are the most practical and they are finding favor in circles where a less expensive corset never was accepted before. It is a combination of linen and bands of rubber with net used above, and it is absolutely successful about keeping rubber tires above the waist smoothed out to take their positions as beautiful womanly curves.

For those who have not as yet been visited by the rubber tire curse there are girdles made of voile and rubber, with only a few harmless bones to help them keep their shape—others of net and rubber still slightly boned in places where this shaping and support are actually needed. These to be worn with little lacy uplift brassieres for the tinier figures and longer, more substantial ones for figures that are possibly more developed.

Larger and larger figures still have their corsets of voile and net and linen only here they take on extra bones ever so modestly handled, but still effective, and are reinforced with rubber bandings around the bottom to keep the more humpy portions of the figure in confinement without making the whole idea too hot and heavy.

The point is with these inexpensive, well made and well shaped corsets to have a number of them, and to treat them exactly as one would a chemise—throw them in the wash regularly and keep them spotlessly clean.

Then they are made in the softest of pastel colorings to match the rest of your underwear absolutely. There's nothing the least bit ugly and corsety about these newly designed supporting garments and really they deserved a newly coined name to adequately advertise their great attractiveness.

The fact is that there are new names for some of these new garments that verge on the corset idea if not fully accomplishing corset ends. There is the "mouldette"—something made of rayon glove silk firmly designed to hold in place a not too obstreperous figure. This is shaped, of course, and closely stitched. Then it has a brassiere arrangement that, instead of being cupped in the accepted manner, is well designed with one three-cornered piece crossing another and with a tiny frilled petticoat on its lower edge so that the whole thing takes on a look of permanence and beauty that any one might be proud to possess. These, too, are in varied colors to match dresses and give variety to underdressings.

The whole point of these new corsetings is that they are not prohibitive in price. In other words the time has arrived when it is possible to take on the lines of a beautiful figure at no more expense than formerly was figured in the underwear budget alone.

Drinks for Hot Weather

THE hotter the day the more drink you crave, but this is just the time when the greatest care should be observed as to what kind and how much beverage you consume.

Of course you drink quantities of water. That is all right. You can hardly drink too much provided you use good judgment in drinking it. Some physicians recommend as high as twelve to fifteen glasses of water a day, but they stipulate it must be pure water. If there is any doubt as to its purity the water should be boiled, then chilled.

It is advisable to avoid iced water but this is all right if you drink it slowly and do not gulp down two or three glassfuls in quick succession. Drink ice water slowly and you will probably survive it, even without discomfort.

However, the considerate housewife will have an abundance of cold water in bottles on the ice so the family, while at home, may indulge freely and this is preferable to water containing ice. She will also have lime juice, raspberry vinegar, and fruit juices—especially lemon, orange, grape and loganberry—to add to the water and make it a very palatable and satisfying drink. These are both cooling and refreshing.

Be very moderate with tea and coffee during the hot weather. Even iced tea should be taken in moderation—perhaps one or two glassfuls per day with meals. Buttermilk is an excellent summer drink.

Plant Trays

POTTED plants, ferns, ivy, as well as the hundred and one varieties which grow indoors, always leave a lamentable ring on table or window sill after they have had an immersion in cold water. The rubber tray is the thing to have handy, for it is ribbed inside so that air gets in under the pot, the moisture in the dirt can drip as much as it likes, and all is well. It is of green rubber, too, and is only about 50 cents in price. The plants in the window garden will look much more ensembled if all repose on rubber trays.

The Beauty Shop

When Beauty Goes Ajourneying

OFF to the woods, down to the sea, up to the mountains. All of us going somewhere. For fun and health and beauty. The health and the fun we can be pretty sure about, but not the beauty—unless we are travel-wise.

The point being that a steamboat or a steam train are wonderful places for breeding blackheads; high, dry climates ideal spots for cultivating wrinkles, and wide, open spaces, like prairies, deserts and seacoasts, just the localities for acquiring a leathery skin.

FRANCES OLIVIER

If we sound cynical about the business of going away, believe us, we do not mean to. Going away should bring us beauty as well as health and fun, but unfortunately it does not—as witness most of the returned travelers' faces. And all because of neglect—neglect of the "little things."

Such all-important little things as, for example, a liquid skin cleanser and plenty of cleansing tissue for frequent use on boats and trains. A sunburn preventive to be applied before the hike or swim or whatever sport takes people out to face the summer sun. A rich, "nourishing" cream or "skin food" to ward off or iron out squint lines and wrinkles. A water softener. Especially a water softener.

Once only thirty miles from home this department week-ended, and struck water so hard and cruel that it was a punishment to any skin. Fortunately we were prepared with toilet ammonia and starch—yes, everyday laundry starch—and lots of cream and a softening skin lotion, and we saved our skin!

A moment ago we spoke of liquid cleanser for train and boat travel. Eau de cologne is an excellent liquid cleanser for the oily skin inclined to blackheads and large pores. Then there are other liquids specially designed for cleansing and specially kind to dry, sensitive skin. And, of course, there are the cleansing tissues. These are remarkably satisfactory for dry cleansing the face from time to time while en route.

No traveling bag is quite complete without a beauty box and one containing something more than cleansing cream. You can assemble your own little kit or you can simply step up to any well-stocked beauty counter and buy an outfit all arranged and planned just for sojourning.

One other thing the travel-wise and beauty-wise will watch, and that is diet. Changing one's boarding house means changing one's complexion too—for better or for worse. Do see that it is for—the best!

Sun Shades Are the Vogue

IT wouldn't be possible in this period of revived dress styles and accessories, to do without the sunshades. Some models are femininely small and may be collapsed and carried in matching bags. Others are frankly wide enough to serve adequately on the beach and harmonize with the lounging costume.

Pique, used with abandon in out-of-door things, makes an unusually striking pajama costume, the wide trousers of black and the hip length collarless coat of white, with a deep black border banding the jacket and sleeves. The sections of the pique umbrella alternate black and white.

When you don an eyelet embroidered frock for the garden party, you will present a quaint picture if you have a sunshade of linen with an eyelet embroidered motif.

HOW STYLES ARE MADE

IF men's suits were designed like ladies' clothing:

Office of the Finklebaum Suit Company.

"Well, Jake," says Abe Finklebaum, the senior partner, "it is time we should be deciding on styles for the 1930-31 men's clothes. What will we do about formal wear?"

"For men's tuxedos next season," says Jake, "I think we should make the front of the coat twelve inches lower than the back. Then all the guys what bought tuxedos last winter will be out of style."

"That is a good idea for the coat," admits Abe, "but that still won't prevent well dressed fellers from wearing last year's vest."

"I ain't finished yet on 1930-31 styles," says Jake. "The last forty years men have been wearing black waistcoats with tuxedos. For next season the style will be vests in pastel shades. A black vest will be old-fashioned except for high grade funerals."

"It's a radical departure," demurs Abe.

"I know it," Jake concedes, "but it's the only way to force guys to buy new vests. That is what's the matter with the suit trade—men wearing the same tuxedo outfit for two and three years."

* * *

"But won't it look curious," asks Abe, "to see a fellow in black tuxedo coat and trousers wearing a pastel colored vest?"

"I ain't told you about the 1930-31 tuxedo pants yet," Jake continues. "They are going to be purple. Then they can't wear last year's pants, either, and be in style."

"I dunno," muses Abe.

"And not only that, but the well dressed man must wear GREEN pants with his full dress suit in 1930-31. That will put a stop to guys what wear the same pair of pants with their tuxedos and spike-tails."

"If you put it across, it will save the wholesale men's suit business," Abe enthuses.

"It's a cinch," says Jake. "The slogan of the men's suit trade is: 'Whatever you wore last year is now wrong.' We are going to get the men's hat makers to join us."

"How?"

* * *

"When the new fall derbies come out they won't have any brim on the front."

"The customers won't wear 'em, Jake."

"Sure they will! Any man that wears a derby with the brim all around will be a laughing stock. He won't be in style."

"But we got statistics showing the average man wears the same derby two and a half years."

"Not this year, Abe. They can't even give the old ones to the Salvation Army if they have a full brim."

"I hope you put it over, Jake."

* * *

"Now for men's fall topcoats I got another idea. Last year they were three-quarter length."

"Don't I know it!"

"That'll be all wrong next fall. The swell dressed man will have to have a topcoat that comes within four inches of the ground."

"Why so low, Jake?"

"So they will have to buy new topcoats to be in style. If it was eight inches from the ground the hem in last year's coats might be wide enough to let down."

"Jake, you're a genius! But won't the well-dressed man of 1930-31 look like hell?"

"Sure, he'll look like hell," admits Jake, "but he'll be in style. And we'll increase our business 150 per cent."

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."
Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

DISRAELI
BY EVE BERNSTEIN

Copyright 1929, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

This novel is based on the Warner Bros. & Vitaphone picture starring George Arliss.

SYNOPSIS

While Disraeli and his wife look over a list of guests to be invited to a garden party at which he insists that a Mrs. Travers, young Deeford and Clarissa be present, Sir Michael Probert of the Bank of England calls to tell the Premier that the bank will not advance money to buy the Suez Canal.

Disraeli wants the canal as a route to India, to help build an empire and to thwart Russia's ambitions. He enlists young Deeford as an ally and encourages Deeford's suit for Clarissa's hand.

The Premier confirms his belief that Mrs. Travers and her husband Foljambe, his secretary, are spies for Russia. He arranges to have Sir Hugh Meyers to advance money to buy the canal.

FOURTH INSTALMENT

A FEW moments later Deeford came back with the news that Foljambe was not around.

"Then I shall tell you where he is," Disraeli said. "He is at the Victoria Station catching the 10:30 express to Ostend, to Trieste, and so to Cairo."

"For God's sake, who is he?" Deeford asked.

"He is Mrs. Travers's husband. He and she are agents—spies, whom Russia has sent to discover what you have told them."

"Why did you employ him, knowing he was a spy?"

"Because I wanted to have him under my own eye. For weeks he has been spying about in this room secretly. I've laid traps for him—letters for him to read to give him a false scent—when you"——

Deeford Receives Clarissa's Promise to Marry Him

"Blundered," Deeford put in.

"Sit down," Disraeli nodded to both of them. "Ismail Pasha, Khedive of Egypt, is under the impression he is Rameses the Great, but the only pyramid he has raised is a pyramid of debt. Egypt is a dry bone, out of which he has sucked the last ounce of marrow. The last assets he has are the controlling shares in the Suez Canal, and these he is dying to sell to the highest bidder. France built the canal, but is too poor to buy it. Russia covets it as a means of snatching India. England as a means of defending it. Both pretend the purchase is the last thing they are thinking of. Both are watching each other like cats. And Ismail sits and waits for the cat to jump. Those shares I mean to have. The Bank of England refused to back me, but today Meyers has given me a blank cheque. I thought the thing was done, but now Foljambe knows — Russia knows. In a week Foljambe will be in Cairo, and whatever sum I offer he will double."

"Is there no remedy?" Clarissa asked.

"One. I must send a man to the Khedive with unlimited powers, ready to outbid anything and ready to pay on the nail."

"What must be the man's qualifications?" Deeford inquired.

"A strong, silent man, subtle and cunning, fighting wiliness with wiliness."

"Have you such a man, sir?"

"I've sent for him."

Clarissa began to weep softly.

"For a moment," she sobbed, "I had hoped—it might be"—— She looked at Charles.

"Don't say it, Clarissa!" Deeford begged.

"Do say it, Clarissa," Disraeli said with growing enthusiasm. "Because there is another kind of man who might be twice as useful, a man so honest that the rogues would think him a rogue, so truthful that they'd swear he was lying, so simple that they'd never fathom him. You are the man, Charles," he finished.

"I—to be trusted with this mission?" Deeford was incredulous. "But I have failed already."

"Nearly all my successes in life are founded on previous failures. You have only to meet all the cunning with that stolid British face of yours, and the schemers will be disarmed. Will you go? There will be grave danger—I mean danger of death"——

"I will go."

"Clarissa, do you forbid him to go?"

"I cannot—forbid," she answered through her tears. "He must go."

"Then I think I may tell him," Disraeli went on, "there is a great reward awaiting his return."

"If I succeed?" asked Charles.

"If you succeed or fail," Clarissa answered.

"I could start the day after tomorrow," Charles decided.

"Capital. That will make the undertaking so much more interesting," Disraeli said. "Your friend, Foljambe, will have forty-eight hours start with Ismail."

"You mean I shall be too late? Well, tomorrow then."

"That's better, but Foljambe can do a great deal in a day."

"Now!" Disraeli said rising. "In ten minutes."

In the next few weeks the doctor called often at the Disraeli home, really to treat Lady Beaconsfield. But London would have it that Disraeli himself was ill, and every newspaper carried a report to that effect. Disraeli, meanwhile, busied himself at home with his garden and his peacocks. It was not a bad idea at that particular time to allow England to believe he was inactive. When the thing was settled, that would be the time to show himself. Clarissa came daily for two reasons. She was waiting for news from Charles, and she wanted to be with Lady Beaconsfield as much as possible because she was not well. After many anxious days of waiting, news came at last. Disraeli read Charles's telegram to the two women.

"The celery is ripe to cut."

Disraeli replied to their looks of surprise by showing them the code in which the message was written.

"That means," he explained, "the Suez Canal Purchase is completed and the cheque accepted."

While Clarissa wept for joy, Disraeli told Lady Beaconsfield that now another dream of his could be realized—to make their sovereign Empress of India. And now he must telegraph to Meyers. He had made it all possible—another Jew. There would be a peerage for him. He sat down and wrote the triumphant words to Meyers, but there was no need to send them out, for just then the gentleman in question was being announced to Disraeli.

"Delighted to see ou, Mr. Meyers," Disraeli greeted him effusively.

He bowed to the ladies, and then looked around uneasily. He was excited and nervous, and begged quickly for a few moments alone with the Prime Minister.

"I was just about to send you a telegram," Disraeli began.

"Pardon me. You must hear me first. Mr. Disraeli, I can hardly tell you—I am bankrupt."

"I don't understand."

"My house is bankrupt."

"You mean you are temporarily pressed," Disraeli interpreted it in his own way.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA BROKE

Congress has failed to appropriate for the capitol's government, and theoretically Washington, starting at midnight becomes as penniless as Chicago ever was.

The district's nearly 500,000 residents will not be seriously hampered for a while yet, as the next pay day for police, firemen and other district officials is 15 days off.

Some Hope

There is some hope that the wide split between the house and the senate over a $3,000,000 item in the $43,000,000 district appropriation bill will be settled satisfactorily, but not much.

The row is an outstanding one in congress, which has been very marked by clashes between the two houses.

President Hoover was understood today to be making a move to compromise the split between the senate, which voted $12,000,000 as federal contribution to the district's support, and the house, which voted only $9,000,000.

Funds Asked

Today, the house passed 182 to 3 a resolution to provide funds to pay current expenses on the same basis as during the current year. But a number of interested senators indicated they would seek to block senate action on this, and also to oppose the necessary concurrent resolution for adjournment, until the house gives in on the appropriation item.

It is mostly a matter of pride, but enough to cause serious danger that members of congress will not get to leave here Wednesday or Thursday night to make Fourth of July speeches in their home districts.

Big Fight.

The fight has been going on for six weeks, the bill having been deadlocked in conference since May 19.

The district, residents of which have no votes in their government or any representation in congress, has had congress as its "common council" for more than 50 years. The background of the current controversy is the tax-exempt government property here, valued at nearly a half billion dollars.

Bankhead Girl Again Gets Reno Divorce

RENO, Nev., June 30. —UP— Mrs. Eugenia Hoyt, member of the prominent Bankhead family of Alabama, secured an annulment of her marriage to Wilfred Lawson Butt here today and announced she would wed Howard Lee, stock broker of Dallas, Texas, Tuesday night.

The ceremony will be the fourth in which Mrs. Hoyt has been a principal.

In 1920 she became the bride of Morton Hoyt, former solicitor general at Washington, D. C. She was divorced by him in 1928, but they remarried several months after, and in 1929 she became the plaintiff in a successful divorce action.

The marriage to Butt followed, and the couple went to Honolulu for the honeymoon. There, Mrs. Hoyt claimed in her action for an annulment, she learned that Butt, a former football player at Oneonta Military Academy in Los Angeles and a soda fountain employe, had not secured a final decree of divorce.

Mrs. Hoyt said that following her marriage to Lee, she will fly with him to Los Angeles and then the couple will go to Dallas by air. She said she and her husband would participate in the coming senatorial campaign in Alabama, traveling between cities by airplane.

The proposition under consideration is to pay the firemen $2.50 for each alarm answered and $1.00 for each drill.

Resignation of Building Inspector H. E. Wood, to take effect immediately was accepted by the council.

H. E. Wood, former building inspectors, bill for $55.00 as over payment in fees to the city treasurer was referred to City Attorney T. H. DeLap. Wood stated that he turned into the city treasury one half of the fees collected over $40.00 per month, when all of the fees should have been retained by him.

LUCICH CRIES AS HE TELLS OF SLAYING

SAN RAFAEL, June 30.—UP— Vincent Lucich, whose singing echoed through the county jail when he was first accused of killing Melville G. Sturtevant, government witness in prohibition cases, broke down and cried when he was on the witness stand to defend himself against a charge of first degree murder here late today.

Choking audibly and tears streaming down his face, Lucich testified that he shot Sturtevant in self-defense. Women in the court room touched handkerchiefs to their eyes as the man who had been described by the state's star witness, Mrs. Grace Berri, as a professional gunman, related his story.

He said that as he was stooping over to step into the car Sturtevant hit him with a gun.

"I reached for my pistol and fired," Lucich testified. "He slumped in the seat—he raised up—I shot him again. I backed away as Mrs. Grace Berri came toward me, firing. I shot at her and she ran."

Then he told how he put the pistol in his waistband and dragged the body of Sturtevant to a shack so the buzzards would not get it.

Mrs. Berri was wounded and was near death for a time. In her first statement the night of the shooting she accused Lucich.

The next morning Lucich called a San Francisco detective captain from a cafe in North Beach of that city and said: "This is Vince—won't you have breakfast here with me."

Wedding bells did not ring for William Rumball, 22, 3016 1-2 Minna street, Oakland, this week, instead Rumball heard the cell door of the El Cerrito jail clang shut behind him, when he was unable to raise bail of $100 on charges of reckless driving and illegal possession of liquor.
